34th Student Conference on
Computational Linguistics
22nd - 24th of May 2025, Bochum

ABOUT TACOS

The Tagung der Computerlinguistik-Studierenden (TaCoS) was first organized in 1992 and takes place once a year. It offers students of Computational Linguistics and adjacent fields a chance to exchange views during talks and workshops.

The conference is hosted by teams of student volunteers at their university. This year's host is the Ruhr University Bochum.

To keep the participation fee for students low, the conference depends on sponsorships.

THE CONFERENCE

What can participants expect?

- ✦ Learning about pioneering advancements in Natural Language Processing and Artificial Intelligence
- ✦ Talks and workshops - given by students
- ✦ Keynote speeches and panel discussions by established academics
- ✦ Connecting with up to 110 other motivated students from all over Germany
- ✦ Getting to know potential employers through networking events

What does my donation go towards?

- ✦ Accommodations for traveling students
- ✦ Food and drinks for participants during the four days of the conference
- ✦ Diversity scholarship to aid financially disadvantaged students in attending
- ✦ Making the conference as beneficial and enjoyable as possible for all participants

NETWORKING EVENT

During a designated two-hour networking session, sponsors have the opportunity to advertise themselves to industry interested students as possible employers for internships, working student jobs or full-time positions. This presents students a complementary perspective to academia.

DIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIP

Participants who need financial support to be able to attend the conference are offered a diversity scholarship. They do not need to pay the participation fee and receive a travel grant. Sign language interpreters and other accessibility measures are also financed through the diversity scholarship.
